On Saturday, the state of Arizona reported 8,243 new cases. The states of Utah and New Mexico will report case numbers on Monday. Navajo Nation President Jonathan Nez and First Lady Phefelia Nez joined frontline workers on Saturday, during the Crownpoint Healthcare Facility's COVID-19 vaccine and booster shot drive in the community of Thoreau, N.M., and distributed masks, cleaning products, and other PPEs to residents.

"We truly appreciate all of our frontline warriors who work on weekends to administer COVID-19 vaccines and booster shots for our Navajo people. They go above and beyond their call of duty to save lives and protect communities. If you or someone you know has not received the vaccines, please encourage them to do so as soon as possible. As this surge continues, the data shows how effective the vaccines are in preventing severe symptoms and hospitalizations. We are in this together," said Navajo Nation President Jonathan Nez.

Health care facilities on the Navajo Nation continue to administer COVID-19 vaccines. If you would like to receive one of the COVID-19 vaccines, please contact your health care provider and schedule an appointment.

"If you're feeling sick, please stay home, isolate, and make a plan to safely get tested as soon as you can. The Omicron variant is highly transmissible, but we know what precautions we must take to protect ourselves. Please be safe, take safety measures, and keep praying for our frontline workers and all of our people," said Vice President Myron Lizer.
