New homes set to be constructed in Rock Springs community

ROCK SPRINGS, N.M. – Navajo Nation President Jonathan Nez and Vice President Myron Lizer joined 24th Navajo Nation Council Speaker Seth Damon, Navajo Housing Authority CEO Maureen G. Curley, and Rock Springs community members on Tuesday during the Rock Springs NHA housing site ground breaking ceremony in Rock Springs, N.M.

The project will include 10 two-bedroom homes, and one structure with ADA accessibility. The development site will also require facility upgrades including road, water, and sewer infrastructure. The project will extend eastward of the current NHA subdivision within the community.

“The housing authority and community’s decade community vision is coming to fruition through hard work, innovation and perseverance. We are excited to see the project come out of the ground and welcome families in need of high quality and affordable housing, and most importantly, the homes are located on the Nation closer to family. We commend the chapter officials, community members, and NHA officials for working together to expand new opportunities,” said President Nez.

The 10 structures will significantly increase NHA’s housing stock and ability to meet tribal housing needs. The NHA has partnered with Arviso Construction and Dyron Murphy Architect to complete the project.

During the event, Vice President Lizer congratulated the community in its participation, involvement and continued efforts to make housing available to its community members.

“The project is evidence of community progress. Progress and growth provide the foundation for future opportunities for our children and grandchildren. There is still a lot of work to be done given the housing crisis and the complex solutions needed for so many Navajo households. We have to stay committed so we can have more ground breaking ceremonies,” said Vice President Lizer.

Also in attendance at the event was the Rock Springs Veterans Organization, NHA Board of Commissioners, Arviso Construction President Orville Arviso, and others.

The housing project is expected to be completed by January 2024.
