“We’ve overcome a lot of adversity and challenges caused by COVID-19 and we continue to persevere and move forward. Just as we are taught as Navajo people to follow the teachings of our elders, we must continue to listen to the public health experts who have guided us this far. We need to continue to encourage our loved ones to get vaccinated and get a booster shot if they haven’t already. Vaccines and masks are critical to reducing the spread and severity of COVID-19 in our communities. Please continue to be safe and pray for our frontline warriors and all of our people,” said Navajo Nation President Jonathan Nez.

Health care facilities on the Navajo Nation continue to administer COVID-19 vaccines. If you would like to receive one of the COVID-19 vaccines, please contact your health care provider and schedule an appointment.

“If you are feeling sick, please do not visit family in-person or attend in-person meetings or gatherings. We know how to protect ourselves and others. We need to be responsible for our loved ones and take precautions as we move forward,” said Vice President Myron Lizer.

For more information, including helpful prevention tips, and resources to help stop the spread of COVID-19, visit the Navajo Department of Health's COVID-19 website: <http://www.ndoh.navajo-nsn.gov/COVID-19>. For COVID-19 related questions and information, call (928) 871-7014.
